African Music

- Music is present in everyday life. It is used in all kinds of ceremonies, like weddings, funerals and parties.
- It often describes nature and the community.
- African music is generally lively and energetic but it can also be gentle and melancholic.
- There is a lot of “call and response” in African music. This means that one voice sings something and everyone else answers back.

African Instruments

- Djembe

- Kora

- Balafon

- Kalimba

- Shekere

This is the flag of Kenya.

The Masai Mara is in Kenya. This is a large area of savannah or open grassland.

Lots of animals live in the Masai Mara.

Look at the patterns on these Masai women's clothes.

Jambo Bwana (by Them Mushrooms)

Jambo, Jambo Bwana
Habari gani, mzuri sana
Tuimbe, tucheze sote
Kiswahili, ni lugha ya
Africa

Hello, Hello Mister
How are you? Very well
Let us sing, let us all dance
Kiswahili is the language of
Africa

This is the flag of Congo (DR).

There are long rivers in Africa. (Rivers and lakes are blue on maps.)

Here is part of the River Congo. The River Congo is 4,700 kilometres long.

There are also rain forests in Africa.
Many animals live here too.

Gorillas live in the Congo rainforest.

Hello, Hello, Hello

We used this song to greet people:

This is the flag of Senegal.

You can find beautiful beaches

This is a traditional Senegalese village

Fatou Yo

Fatou yo si dia dialano

I am Fatou, pretty Fatou

Fatou faye faye fatou
Fatou kélémen dio
Fatou yo si dia dialano

Fatou oh, oh Fatou,
Like all the children of the world
I am Fatou, pretty Fatou.

Boutoumbélé boutoumbélé
Boutoumbélé o ma mi se ra
O Ma mycasse boutoumbélé

I am happy and will surely grow
I will grow up like everybody else
Like the little elephants and the little giraffes
